On Monday, three nine-year-old children and three adults were murdered at The Covenant School in Nashville, Tennessee. The shooter – armed with not one, but two assault weapons – broke into the school and stole the lives of innocent people simply going about their day. As a parent, I believe the inaction we're seeing from Congress on school shootings is shameful. When I get home from Washington this week, I'll have to look my eight-year-old daughter in the eyes – just a week before her ninth birthday – and tell her that three more kids her age were shot and killed in their classroom. I don't want to have another one of those conversations with my girls. That's why I've consistently supported a ban on assault weapons and commonsense gun safety legislation. I firmly believe that these laws are necessary to end the gun violence epidemic that is plaguing our kids. But, I want to hear from you... Survey Question: DO YOU SUPPORT AN ASSAULT WEAPONS BAN?
