While we seem to have turned a corner in our fight against COVID-19, it is imperative we continue to take precautions like mask wearing and social distancing, and get the vaccine as soon as you're eligible. Our communities still need critical assistance to make it through this pandemic. President Biden's American Rescue Plan is the aid we need to support our communities, including accelerating the vaccine distribution, supporting the reopening of schools and businesses, and providing another round of direct payments. On January 26, California State Government released a new tier system based on guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), which can be found here (<https://covid19.ca.gov/vaccines/>) . At this time, California has opened vaccine availability to include those 65 and older and healthcare workers. However, due to vaccine shortages and current distribution issues, Central Coast counties continue to prioritize health care workers and individuals aged 75 and older. Please keep in mind that vaccine distribution varies by county. Below is some information on current vaccine distribution for our communities
